CAUTION .-- We beg leave to caution purchasers of our choice OLD MONONGAHELA WHISKIES against the deception and petty fraud which is practiced by certain parties in this city and in Baltimore, who have appropriated to themselves exact copies of the Star Brands, long used and designed by us to distinguish our Old Whiskeys. We can assure our friends and customers, that the unrivalled quality, everywhere acknowledged, of our choice OLD WHISKIES, cannot be equalled by these ingenious invaders of our rights. Our new establishment, GIBSONTON MILLS, on the Monongahela River, gives us unequalled facili ties for making Whiskey of the choicest kind, from malted and kiln-dried grain.

Purchasers of our Old Whiskies will please to notice, the words Gibsonton Mills and John Gibson, Sons & Co., are inserted in the new Brands which we now adopt; and we deem it a duty to our customers and ourselves, to give notice, that we will prosecute and expose any person or persons who may hereafter copy or use our Brands.

MISCELLANEOUS READING SPRING.

NO. 77.

Sweetly the Spring steals in upon us with soft approaches, just as we are able to bear the change. So the morning, in tenderness for our eyes, opens gradually on half-shut eye to enable the sight to gain strength to encounter full dawn. This economy of the eye, which cannot bear all at once the full light of day without risk of injury, is a sufficient proof to that numerous class who are skeptical, because they are lazy, of the testimony of nature to the value of early rising. Nature imposes this as an obligation, using such gentle force as it may without impugning the freedom of the will. The Spring thus glides am ng us by soft gradations, providing defences against its increasing brightness in the universal green of the earth, and in the dark blue curtain of the heavens, which are the two particular colors most agree able to the eye.

In the selecting of a climate to spend one's days in, some lay stress on the middle s of the winter; others on the cooling breezes of summer. For ourselves we would stay exactly where we are. The heats of sommer are not long in the latitude of the Middle States, and there is just about enough of the biting frosts of winter to brace up the muscles to fight an equal battle with the hot blasts which the dog star will by and by bring in his train. And then the long, long springthat beautiful quarter of the year when the Pleiades rain down their sweet influence, and have done so ever since the days of Job, as SEE5.700 | well as ages before; no where else, either on the north or south of us, does this delicious spring so linger and dally with the sleeping bud and flower, soliciting them every morning to arouse and show themselves, till finally it succeeds, and the world starts into a flower garden. Is a bud or flower ever so fresh and captivating as in the early spring, when cloud and sunshine dispute the honor of its development, and one cannot tell for the life of him at any hour, what sort of weather another may bring forth? We must in candor, however, acknowledge that this pretty Spring is also a capricious beauty, sometimes conquering us by its bewitching smiles, and, whenever these will not answer, subduing us with tears. Alternate smiles and tears in lact make up the character of Spring, and sometimes she-we insist on her feminity against the authority of the ancients-shows her pretty teeth of snow even amid her smiles. Her caprice, as has been hinted, proves her sex, and her caresses are never so fatal as when by her endearments she has warmed her victims into love and confidence, and then reveals those glittering teeth of hers, which impart death in her kisses. The sweetest of sounds, too, are heard in the vernal season—the distant ripling and splash of brooks and waterfalls, the low notes of the warblers and song-birds practising for the full public concert to be given in June. We hope our Legislature or public opinion at any rate will make it death or something less to kill one of them, or to destroy their nests. For soon, and during weeks and weeks to come, they will be building their domicils in the crotches of leafy branches, in the hollows of trees, in the high lands, in the low lands, and meadows near the humble bees' honey bottles. If the boy's shall meddle with in the summer, when the yellow jackets are filling them with nectar, we hope they will feel the smarting stings of their owners, that's all.

Nor are birds the only builders at this genial season. Every man who has money in his pocket feels it turning over and rattling there from an impatience to buy a building lot, and erect a palace or a shanty on it. If nothing more can be attempted, the owner of a home already built demolishes his rooms or fences, and renews them in fresh forms, either better or worse than the old, it is not much matter which. In this, birds are wiser than their fellow bipeds, for they never construct homes they do not want to occupy, and rarely build for posterity, which is sure of course to alter if LIXCHANGE AND BANKING HOUSE OF not to destroy what its ancestors have done C.
